What We Live By . . .

At the beginning of a decade, Amelia's private world was invaded by the surrounding area of Clermont County. The invaders wanted Amelia High School to consolidate to form the West Clermont Local School District. After much controversy, the goal to consolidate was reached, but the battle of controversy left wounds.

Throughout this decade of controversy, Amelia High School's yearbook remained titled RECENSIO which established a definitive of the decade - to critically revise by editors.

So, the editors in the summer of 1970 enrolled in a journalism workshop at Ohio University which thought that yearbooks were produced with a greater significance when it had a symbol to represent all school productions. It was at this time the staff adopted the school's coat-of-arms (presented by Geno Valle of the Herf Jones Company) for its symbolic title - THE BARON.

This adoption was subordinated to the main purpose of a yearbook - to record the founding principles that guide the LIVES OF BARONS.

Achievement Encompasses Baronians

Upon entering Amelia High School each student opened the door to his future. A future encompassed by a Baronian quality of "achievement." An achievement prompted by both a faculty and administration designed curriculum to meet every Baronians' goal.

The curriculum swept a wide range of courses namely college preparatory, commercial arts, and vocational education. College preparatory encouraged students to acquire good study habits for higher learning as well as to acquire textbook knowledge. On the other hand, the commercial department stressed speed and accuracy in all phases of business. While the vocational leaders pointed to the skills necessary for operation of machinery.

In additon to all this textbook knowledge each student searched to widen his achievement further by seeking one or more extra-curricular activities. These activities designed as locks helped the students' character and provided him with a key to the door of leadership.

Baronage Lights Up With Color

With the beginning of a new school year came the new look. Fashions swang into the seventies, and the big to-do in Baronesses' clothes moved to longer lengths. New emphasis was placed on the waist, head, and legs as the hemlines dropped.

As the skirts dropped lower, the eyes rose and focused on new sites. The waist was the prime target. For this era of waist watching, every length needed waist definition to achieve the new proportion. With a zoom to the top, there were plenty of lively ways for Baronesses to use their heads. Decorated with braids, barrettes, wraps, and head bands they gave their hair a new shape, line, and touch of color.

Color also fashioned the Barons of Amelia. Their flared pants, French cuffed shirts, and wide striped ties were designed to match either solid colors or more stripes. Wide leather belts supported the Barons' trousers, while fringed suede ones accented the Baronesses'. When the 1970-71 school year closed, the Baronage of Amelia highlighted its fashions with just color.

Activities Reflect Service

Activities reflected the life of servites. Each day was an individual experience for him. It was his favorite time of the day. A day enhanced by serving others. The day became the night. The night brought basketball games, football games, and dances. The basketball games reflected the servant's blue pride. Blue pride took the form of his intense feeling of needing to serve Amelia High School. The dances took the position of all serving with their heart and soul - clubs sponsoring the dances, students attending and enjoying, and the faculty just being there.

As each day went by every servite added to the mill of activities. Amelia grew and prospered from these varied individual contributions, creating a completely rounded society in itself, everyone working for the good of their fellow servite and the good of its total creation, a creation belonging to every student, therefore making it the best school around.

Barion Triumphs to Victory

The sports minded Baron used strategy in solving the conflicts he encountered with an opponent. The ultimate victory was not assured, so in the on-going struggle many casualties were suffered. Yet, the opponent never relented his attack.

The opponent sought out the Baron's weakest points, constantly probing for the chinks in his armor. Arrows were continuously hurled at the Baron and too often they found their marks. These arrows were painful and sometimes fatal.

But there was always a common means of defense maintained. This defense was the Baron's ability to sacrifice. Using this shield, the Baron quenched the flaming darts of his opponent. Because of this the Baron maintained its Noble rank.

Administration Communicates Order

During a decade of development, the pulse of Amelia High School throbbed steadily. Through the come and go of an interminable company of faces and personalities, the heartbeat continued. Some passed through insensitive to its staccato pulsation; many have been stirred and shaken; others in their brief stay recognized a wisdom and concern far beyond their own.

What, then, was the source and character of the force which gave impetus and definition to a high school such as Amelia. It wasn't discovered alone in those who came only to move on again. Nor was it totally grasped in even its legal body, the trustees. Instead, it was recognized in a composite of people and the services they rendered.

It was experienced in the simple acts of depositing money in the office or receiving auto permits from Mr. Comn. We perceived this in the attentive ear of Mr. Nutgrass - in the quiet dignity of Mr. Comn, but often unnoticed were the efforts of our superintendent, Mr. Gingrich.

All-in-all the decade scoped many facets and faces, but in the final analysis one word summarized the All-Administration.

Fine Arts Create Cultured Minds

Having filled Amelia's halls with the sounds of golden lyrics, students from the Fine Arts Department contributed greatly to the school's cultural achievement.

As one of the major contributors, the Music Department provided many opportunities for those who sang or played instruments. Marching Band provided instruction in the field of instrumental music, while both the Stage Band and Mixed Ensemble attended a new course titled Music Appreciation.

The Physical Education Department also gave the student a well-rounded program which increased his level of skill, knowledge, awareness, and appreciation. The individual's attention was devoted to the learning of fundamentals in specific sports: speedball, basketball, volleyball, track, and softball. Administering physical fitness tests illustrated the progress of all.

Another broadening subject area was art. Art represented itself in the wandering of a pencil, the carving of a knife, or just the stroke of a brush; anything which created growth.

Foreign Languages Teach Fundamentals

The Foreign Language Department consisted of two languages: French and Spanish. Mr. Kenneth Randall was chairman and teacher of Spanish while Mrs. Laurel Hafertepen filled the position of French teacher. With the co-operative effort of both teachers, foreign language students continued to aim at their goal: to speak a language fluently with a cultural background.

The French courses were taught at four levels: French I classes studied oral communication, phonetics, intonation, and the fundamentals of grammar; French II reinforced these areas, while French III covered in depth the French Indians and the geography of France. "Free" composition became an intergradient at all grade levels. Those students who dared to take the final step enrolled in French IV which challenged the individual to outside reading.

Likewise Spanish was taught on four levels. Furthermore, so that Spanish I, II, and III complemented the foreign language curriculum, each level complected the same basic principles as French I, II, and III. However, Spanish IV gave its enrollees a glimpse of the bonds of the language of the Spanish people.

French and Spanish were both elective courses, and therefore oriented to individual study extended to the language laboratory.

With much enthusiasm Mrs. Hafertepen pushes on with her French lessons to the end of the day.

Utilizing the Language Lab as an audio aid, Mr. Randall instructs Spanish II students.

Languages Instruct in Grammar and Literature

"Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow ... " These were not words of a happy optimist but of a senior English student memorizing a famous speech from Macbeth. In another room a junior student was searching out the bitter symbolism in the Grapes of Wrath, while her sophomore friend died a slow death over a 500 word composition. Unknowingly the freshman croaked because of a little thing like grammar.

Nevertheless, the student maintained his sanity and dignity - both of which were essential to survive.

Science and Math Fill a Need

Science was everywhere. It affected everyone every day, just as it influenced our government. Due to the importance and demand for people in this field, the science curriculum continued to grow in size and knowledge.

At the beginning of the year a newly developed course called Introductory Physical Science (IPS) was designed to start at the Freshman level. This course, lab oriented, attempted to give its students an understanding of scientific principles through experimentation and prepared the upperclassmen for more advanced courses such as biology, chemistry, and physics.

Mathematics was a requirement of all students who chose business, industry, or college preparatory. After completing the course which was general math, some students expanded their mathematic skills to the Algebra I, Plane Geometry, Algebra II, Math IV and Math V classes.

Hopefully all these newly developed programs in the science and mathematic department filled the need of a complex society.

Social Studies Specializes

In order to promote the newly formed goals of a well-rounded curriculum, methods of recognizing, analyzing, and resolving social problems as well as departments became basic components of the course of study in 1970-71.

Taking advantage of the recently added curriculum director's recommendation the History Department was able to make greater use of the specific abilities of its highly qualified faculty that decided to utilize the suggestion to make available the independent study. As a result, students had to specialize in an area which led to research - various interpretations of history.

Attempting to train students for their role in educational processes, the Department of Social Studies afforded study in both World and American History, geography, Social Studies and Sociology. In the latter two courses a student spent part of his time in the classroom and the remainder participating in the actual functions of outside people directly faced with their problems.

To understand the problem Mr. Rudy Schaudig, the Psychology teacher, invited guest speakers to the classroom to explore the world of philosophy and perhaps to add to it.

Using the independent study method, the History Department imparted an attitude of scholarly reflection based upon this method's philosophy.

A Nation Recognizes Applied Technology

Providing highly specialized training and a broad general education, the Department of Industrial Education offers special emphasis for technical occupations in either drafting, electricity-electronics, metals, or graphic arts.

Preparing students for technical occupations were the following: Woodworking and Metals involved an intensified study in the field supplemented with minor projects; Advanced Woodworking opened to students wishing to further their interests and gave individuals an opportunity to exhibit projects such as tables, cedar chests, desks, and coffee tables; Advanced Metals included machine shop practices; and Power Mechanics gave experience in small motor repair plus understanding the operation of two and four cycle engines.

Student Council Assumes the Role

Finding itself in the midst of unfulfilled projects and inadequately organized activities, Amelia's student government association set as its goals for 1970-71 the following: (1) to select a new faculty advisor; (2) to provide a forum through which student opinion could be expressed; (3) to take the available powers and enforce them; (4) to assume previously ignored powers and use them effectively.

To this end, the Student Council led by President Cathy Crawford went on record as desiring full responsibility from each school organization toward betterment of the school. Expecting as much from itself as from all clubs and organizations, the Student Council adopted a new, stronger, more dynamic constitution which would force new efforts to improve school relationships and activities.

Further committees under the auspices of their new advisor, Mr. Randall, investigated several dominating school problems such as the ever present declining school spirit, uncontrolled and over-lapping student activities, and the continuing Student Council bankruptcy.

Inter-Club Centers on Student Interest

Inter-club was composed of the leaders from each activity within the school. The concern of its members evolved around school functions such as dances, discussions, Christmas decorations on classroom doors, service at many events, and specified projects set up to improve the school.

Hence, this club met twice a month to discuss issues and problems pertinent to the functions of student government.

Furthermore, the participants tried to play a more significant role than they had in the past years.

Looking ahead, hopefully, the Student Council's re-written constitution which incorporated Inter-club Council in Student Council, changed the club from a boring, disinteresting role into a more beneficial diversion.

Homecoming Maintains Tradition

This year the AHS Homecoming provided a unique experience to the Baron. As Homecoming approached, he began constructing pep posters to be displayed on BLUE PRIDE DAY. To the Baron, BLUE PRIDE DAY marked the beginning of an exciting week-end filled with many festivities such as the class projects, the parade, the football game, and the queen's crowning.

Wanting this year's festivities to be slightly different, the Barons replaced their traditional floats with class projects that aimed at the goal of school improvement. Each class projected this worthwhile objective and received a cloak of recognition at half-time.

The crowning of Brenda Sellmeyer as this year's Homecoming Queen was the highlight of the entire Homecoming Festival on Saturday night, October 16, 1970. She danced, with her court (Diane Gibson, Mike Lamons, Pam Hanselman, Greg Taylor, Debbie Eisenhardt, Jim Frazier, Mike McLaughlin, Barbara Berwanger, Mark Tipton, Terri Collins, and Harold Stone) and quest, to the music of The East Orange Express at the Student Council's Medieval Ball for the Queen.

Organized in 1959 by Mrs. Dolly Walker, faculty sponsor and Mr. Keith Williams, principal, the Baronia Chapter of the National Honor Society continued to honor outstanding students who maintained a 3.0 average.

In conjunction with being a scholar, the possible candidate must have demonstrated other qualities such as character, leadership, and service.

A faculty committee from seven to nine devoted itself to objectively recognizing students who had distinguished themselves by leading a self-less life.

This mark of distinction was furthered in the club's service projects. Activities fostered by the officers - namely Kevin McCarty (president), Patty Wood (vice-president), Kathy Idlett (secretary), Linda Eickleberger (treasurer), were the following: (1) a social banquet with the Glen-Este Chapter, (2) an entry in the Homecoming Parade, and (3) a canned-food-drive for the Salvation Army's drive for charity. Their purpose was to lay the foundation of the club's pledge for the leaders and to maintain fellowship during the year.

Spanish Honor Society Inspires Achievement

Selection of the members of the "Sociedad Honoraria Hispanica" was determined by the achievement of a B+ average compiled over a two-year period of Spanish study and a "B" average over-all. The "Sociedad" honored those students who by their grade achievements had shown a special interest in the Hispanic language and culture. There were two major organization activities which were limited to an initiation ceremony and the decoration of the Language Lab door at Christmas.

Arts Reflect a Sportsmanship Image

In order to obtain membership in the International Thespian Society, the student must have earned a total of ten points through participating in several theatrical productions in addition to showing interest in the theatrical arts. The Thespians were actually the guiding force behind all productions and did the backstage work and ticket promotion. The outstanding productions were DON'T DRINK THE WATER and THE LARK.

An added organization this year was the Amelia's Chess Club. Its purpose was to foster the playing of chess for personal enjoyment and to instil good sportsmanship at a competitive level. The club joined the Cincinnati Chess League.

The faculty advisors of these clubs respectively were Mr. Duane Proctor, Thespians and Mr. James Sargeant, Chess Club.

Students Develop Musicianship Through Participation in the Music Department

The Music Department sponsored six musical groups for talented students in both vocal and instrumental areas. Each group was dedicated to developing the musicianship of the students through class instruction, practices, and public performances. Competition between the members and between the groups created a continual striving for excellence which succeeded in producing a high quality of music.

The instrumental department, under the direction of Mr. Jerald Robinson, included the Concert Band, Jazz Ensemble, and Marching Band. To participate in the Concert Band, students must have passed a playing test in the eighth grade and been able to fit band in his schedule during the school day. The Jazz Ensemble, organized in 1967 by Mr. Robinson, changed its name from the old term stage band. The Marching Band presented halftime shows for football games. The vocal department, under the direction of Mr. Michael Franklin, included Concert Choir, Mixed Ensemble, and Girls Chorus. To participate in the Concert Choir, the prospective member must have passed a musical audition, a personal interview with Mr. Franklin, and maintained a C average. The Mixed Ensemble, formed in 1969 by Mr. Franklin, represented the school as the travelling unit. The Girls Chorus functioned as the beginning chorus for girls, used as a steppingstone to Concert Choir.

These groups performed many times for varied audiences. They gave the school-sponsored Fall, Christmas, and Spring concerts performed at several high schools and participated in clinics at Morehead State University. Preparation for district contest served as the major activity in March.

Theater In The Round Splashes Through AHS

This year's fall play was Woody Allen's "Don't Drink the Water." The story took place in a foreign embassy somewhere behind the iron curtain, when a family of typical American tourists were seen taking pictures of a top missile installation.

The tourists consisted of a husband, Walter Holander (Gary Brooks), his wife, Marian (Dena McAtee), and their far out daughter, Susan (Rita Reed). The tourists were met by the fumbling son of a diplomat, Axel Magee (John Momberg), whose father, Ambassador Magee (Doug Campbell) was away on business. Magee was plagued by many blunders, all pointed out by his more than efficient aid, Kilroy (Lloyd Hamilton), while the eccentric chef (George Koumoutsos) was plagued by Walter Holander, who despised European food. The other characters included: Miss Burns (Loly George), Krojack (Danny Burns), Krojack's butler (Mark Ryan), Sultan of Bashir (Jeff E. Art and JCL Promote Culture

The culture of a civilization was defined in part by its art and language. The Art Club and Junior Classical League were united by their desire to study culture.

Constantly changing art forms created a need for an art club to explain and teach the ancient and contemporary styles as they developed. A visit to the Cincinnati Art Museum and a tie-dying workshop emphasized the dynamism of the Art Club.

The JCL developed as an outgrowth of the desire to study classical civilizations. Attendance at the state convention and several social events pursued this aim.

The 1970-71 Annual Staff "This Is Your Life"

The 1971 BARON was, above all, a yearbook that recorded the events and the people of the year. But the staff felt that there was more. Therefore, they edited a book which brings a rememberance of new friends, new experiences - some to remember a life time, others better forgotten.

Students took an appraising look at this year of 1970-71, Amelia High School, and You.

Now that the year has ended, the BARON seemed as if it were not the task that it really was. For the most part it was a challenging task and there were times when the staff felt that if there were ever to be a 1971 BARON, it would be in spite of, rather than because of, a good many people.

Perhaps the people whom most of us must thank were Karen Kuhn, our faithful editor, who persevered through more than a few trying times; our advising section editors, Judy White, Sandra Rohlfing, David Burton, and Jeff Hatfield; to our "big momma," Pam Hanselman who was in charge of advertising - the Annual's major source of revenue and its "Bread and Butter;" and finally, the playful members of the seventh period annual class: Roger Bick, Debbie Chandler, Jean Erhardt, Sara Erhardt, Jody Fley, Barbara Franke, Pam Hanselman, Jeff Hatfield, Karen Kuhn, Sandy Strosnider, and Judy White.

In retrospect, the staff grew up in a hurry, because they had to, in order to deliver a yearbook; sadly, some never grew and therefore dropped out. But each learned an important thing, whether he wanted to or not.

Hopefully, in the future, we will improve on it.

Freedom of the Press Is a Concept

Freedom of the press and the right to be informed were rather large concepts to condense into a few issues of the BARON BANNER. From the very outset of the school year, the staff became aware of what its responsibilities were - to write and to edit - after the new advisor, Mrs. Nanceye Starkey, had introduced the concept of thinking critically.

The BARON BANNER, published bi-monthly throughout the academic year, served a student enrollment of 1100 with a six-page paper. Both of these accomplishments added to the school's progress during 1970-1971.

But circulation generated insufficient support from the student body and therefore caused the size of the paper not to increase. Hoping to keep this matter of responsibility constantly before the student body, Mrs. Starkey asked that the editors attend the Journalism Workshop at Ohio State.

Here the newly appointed editors (Sharon Marsh, Pat Osborne, Pam Sowder, and Saundra Grissom) learned that the interpretation of school events was the task of their staff and that the crucial issue (student support) was a task to be solved by the student body.

Spanish Club Goes Forward

"Los Conquistadores" attempted to reorganize and expand the club efforts in order to forward the Hispanic language and culture. A loyal group of the membership attended the meetings and programs designed by the President, Rocky Cravens, and the Vice-president, Rita Reed, to meet this purpose.

Secretary Jeff Cummins and Treasurer Nancy Campbell worked under their advisor Mr. Randall to set up the bulletin board in the Spanish room for their reports and announcements. Also the club set up a committee to plan a new display for the Spanish walls.

Use of the Spanish Parliamentary terms in meetings, presentation of slide programs, a Spanish Christmas "fiesta," and the showing of the movie "El Cid" to the school - all demonstrated the success of the reorganization.

Library Cares

Built in the center of the newly added H-Wing at Amelia High School was its library, the center of all educational activity. These activities gave the library a friendly reputation as well as a quiet and academic one.

To help the librarian, Miss Fizer organized a club and those chosen few labored daily checking in and out - books, periodicals, and shelving books; and finally directing students.

The members met as a club twice a month to review policies and to administer instruction in library sciences.

At the close of school the student librarians had become an essential part of a functioning library because of its cooperative student body.

FTA and FSA Are Children of Destiny

The Future Teachers of America (FTA) was an organization devoted to the advancement of the teaching profession and the dispersion of interest in teaching. Among the young people of the nation, it integrated many activities with the OEA and NEA.

Both organizations have recognized outstanding students in the field of education as well as encouraged high professional, intellectual, and personal standards among teachers. This was the most valuable phase of any prospective teacher's education not only in the classroom, but in working with various extracurricular activities carried out by the students of Amelia High School. These various activities included: helping teachers of Amelia Junior High School, exchanging ideas of the different facets of teaching, and sponsoring an observation day at elementary or junior high schools.

The Future Scientists of America (FSA) was an organization dedicated to the interest of science. Because of a seeming lack of interest the club dispersed until the middle of the year when they realized their first impression was wrong. The club began meeting with its new advisor, Mr. Combs. Despite earlier obstacles the club made the Conservation issue their major topic of discussion.

Specialty Groups Promote Spirit of "71"

The Majorettes and Drill Team selected by a faculty committee promoted school spirit. The girls maintained a 1.6 average to perform at half time during the football and basketball games.

Supervised by Mrs. Nichols, the majorettes held learning sessions for interested girls in the skill of baton-twirling. Besides regular half time routines, the girls presented a special Homecoming exhibition which consisted of a five baton-twirling display by each girl.

The "Boot and Tassel" practiced diligently last summer regardless of the weather. While sitting in the bleachers the girls acted as an extra cheering section along with their new advisor, Miss Judy Achor.

Cheerleaders Sustain Sportsmanship

To fourteen girls the Amelia Barons took on a new meaning. They became members of the Varsity and Reserve cheerleading squads following selection by a faculty committee and student body vote. The chosen girls found themselves as the very essence of spirit and student support for the athletic teams, the Barons.

The squads led by captains Missy Shanabrook and Linda Taylor attended every home and away game to promote good sportsmanship and cheer our teams to victory or sustain pride after defeat.

Football Shows Promise

Although hampered by injuries to key personnel throughout the '70 football season, particularly at the quarterback positions, the Barons, under new Coach Dick Steigerwald, reversed their 1-3 record during the first half of the year, and after tying the Northeastern Rockets 8 to 8 in a critical fifth game of a nine game schedule, came along strong with a 3-1 slate in the latter part of the year to achieve a triple tie for first place in the Clermont County League with New Richmond and Northeastern, capturing their first winner's trophy in the last eight years.

Composed mainly of ten seniors, sixteen juniors, and five key sophomores, the squad showed steady improvement from day to day in all-around team play. The only loss the second half of the season was in the finale on a muddy, rain-swept field at North College Hill when they lost to a strong Cincinnati-area squad 25 to 12.

Selected as County All-Stars were Dave Cook, Jim Batchler, Gary West, and Greg Mentzel. Honorable Mention awards went to Defensive Halfback Terry Toon, and Offensive Honorable Mention certificates were received by Joe Herman and Jim "Atlas" Batchler.

Reserves Moonlight for Varsity

The reserve football team operated as a multi-purpose machine this year. The sparsely distributed varsity squad could not hold regular practice sessions without the reserve team members and most players on the reserve roster dressed-out for the varsity games. Coach Lindell set two major goals - to practice daily for varsity success and to develop the aiming as well as unity. Both were necessary for a winning reserve squad.

The team sputtered off the starting line with three straight losses, but then gained necessary repairs to race on to a 3-4 record.

The reserve Barons operated on the definite disadvantage of having very little squad practice, but their contribution was greatly felt in Amelia's quest for a varsity co-championship.

Freshmen Evolve Into Effective Squad

The freshman athletic teams were the foundation for all high school athletics. They were a necessary step in the evolution of the varsity athlete. It is during these years that the freshman is acquainted with high school attitudes toward sports and with a vast potential that will be expected to develop during their (four-year) term at Amelia.

Mr. Ken Stewart coached the yough freshman squad this year. There is no statistic that could recall the importance of this growing squad to Amelia's posterity. He led the team to an unfortunate 2-5 season beginning with five defeats and ending with two victories. They scored 82 points to their opponents 132 and completed fifteen of 35 attempted passes. While these statistics were below expectations, it is unlikely that they reveal the part these athletes will play in the future.

Varsity Basketball Work!

This season was a building year for the varsity basketball team. While it uncovered great potential, it failed to accumulate victories. Mr. Patterson drove the uncertain team through one of Clermont County's toughest league. Mr. Patterson joined Amelia High School's faculty this year and he brought new ideas and new vigor with him. The essence of the new coach's philosophy was work and more work, and it is with this fundamental belief that he molded a small cluster of Barons into a competitive squad. The metamorphosis of the fighting Barons was gradual and their record can not possibly show the sweat and devotion that was displayed by every athlete.

The team stumbled into the season with four consecutive losses before they could muster a victory. In fact, the Barons recorded only four wins during the course of the year, but that did not dampen the team's spirit. They fought on despite the losses and the injuries of key personnel. Every game was a new battle, and Amelia's team retained its pride and composure through every misfortune. The C.C.L. title escaped the Barons 4-13 season, but the lessons learned may brighten the future.

New Coach Sparks Baron Drive

The reserve basketball team faltered many times during this trying season. The reserves were piloted by another new coach, Mr. Jerry Lindell. Mr. Lindell brought to Amelia a new and stronger desire for victory and a great hate of defeat. Mr. Lindell, following Mr. Patterson's example, had to implant the new coach's view on basketball as well as the fundamentals necessary for a varsity player. However, Mr. Lindell's efforts failed to net the Barons a winning season. The first four games ended in Baron defeats, but the team rallied to a 7-10 season despite hardships similarly related to the varsity.

Freshman Basketball Moderates Success

The freshman basketball team had a season of moderate success. They posted a 6-7 season despite the many starting players they sacrificed to the reserve squad. They tipped off the season with two wins followed by a loss of personnel and five defeats. However, Blue Pride remained unscathed as they completed the season with four more victories and two defeats. Mr. Caudill coached the freshman team in his second year at that position, but this year he had to develop a new talent - distributor of athletes to the reserve squad. Mr. Caudill's predicament, similar to that of all the coaches, caused only three league defeats as compared to the experiences that it furnished.

Athletic Program Imparts Competition

Always an integral part of any school program, Athletics at Amelia High School fulfills its purpose of developing competitive instincts, the ability to win or lose gracefully, the intensification of school spirit, the opportunity for student participation in activities, and serves also as a medium for the acceptable release of emotions and physical drives on the part of spectator and athlete alike.

Spearheaded by the Athletic Director, Mr. Thomas Jones, who handles the multiple details involved in scheduling, outfitting, co-ordinating, and presenting the Baron Athletic Squads in action, he was ably abetted by a capable and efficient Business Manager, Mrs. Wilma Lutz, who handled and kept the financial records of all sports receipts and disbursements.

Only those who had actually worked with the problems resulting from a progressive athletic program could possibly appreciate the amount of time and energy involved in making this part of the Amelia High School world a success. In addition to the spring sports to be included in the summer supplement such as volleyball, baseball, golf, and track, plus the girls' athletic program directed and managed by Miss Smith, fall and winter sports chronicled herein included varsity, reserve, freshman football, the three equivalent in basketball, the wrestling squad, cross-country, and a large number of intramural participants in tag football and Saturday basketball squads.

Coaches were constantly active in each sport and division of sport. Without their many hours of dedication and service, much of what was important in our entire school program would be impossible.

Barons Cradle Third Place

This year's edition of the Baron Wrestling squad, although green and inexperienced at key categories because of the graduation last year of several District champions, managed to give a good account of itself before the year was over under the guidance of Coach Curt Shaw, who moved up from his position as the previous Reserve Coach.

In the dual-meet competition, the Barons compiled a 5 and 2 record, and in the two tri-angular meets they finished second and third.

By ninety-eight pound to heavyweight grouping, the most frequent Amelia competitors were Nutgrass, Schroedel, Rust, Stone, Stricker, Fontaine, Cole, Elliott, McCormick, Batchler, West, and Koszo, with no participant in the 119 pound class.

In the county meet held at Northeastern in February, the Barons finished third with seventy-four points behind Northeastern and New Richmond. Trailing were 'Burg, Bethel, Goshen, and Batavia. County winners were Kirby Fontaine (138), and Jim Batchler (175). Runners-up were Tab Stricker (132), Gary West (185) and Rick Koszo (Heavyweight).

Selected outstanding wrestler in the county was Jim Batchler, who pinned all three of his opponents in the county tournament. All in all it turned out to be quite a successful season.

Intramurals Enjoy Super-Spirited Year

Amelia's intramural program provided constructive recreation for those boys who were unable to participate in interscholastic football or basketball. The program became a recreational outlet and an organization of comradship between boys of similar ages and interests. The two intramural sports, flag football and basketball, paralleled interscholastic events in their time location bringing more appreciation to the events held. One hundred and eighty participants of the program herded to school Saturday mornings for friendly competition within the three main divisions - freshman, sophomore, and junior-senior.

Intramural basketball held tournaments and distributed trophies to winning teams. The basketball program also supplied nine senior all-stars to compete with faculty members before a pep assembly for the varsity game with Glen Este. Those all-stars making the team were Carl Bissantz, Jamie Davis, Mark Smith, Terry Toon, Tom Sanker, Dodie Collett, Tom Ellington, Mike Meyer, and Greg Mentzel.

Girls Basketball Defeats Rival

The girls basketball team was led by a new coach this year, Miss Brenda Smith, from West Virginia. There were not as many girls out for the team this year, but the ones that were represented quality rather than quantity. The depth was lacking and the girls had trouble handling some of the big city teams, but accomplished much in the county. The biggest thrill was defeating their county rival, Clermont Northeastern, by a score of 28 to 27.

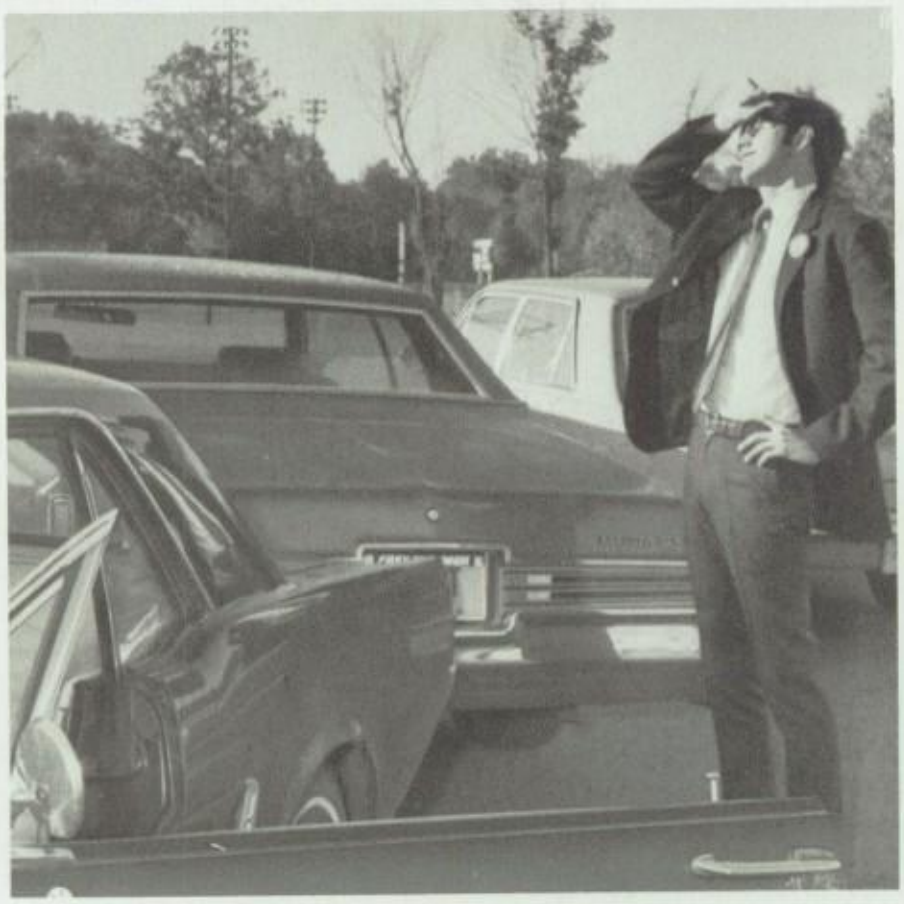
Faculty Symbolizes



As a Driver's Education teacher, Mr. Hilleary demonstrates he isn't perfect.

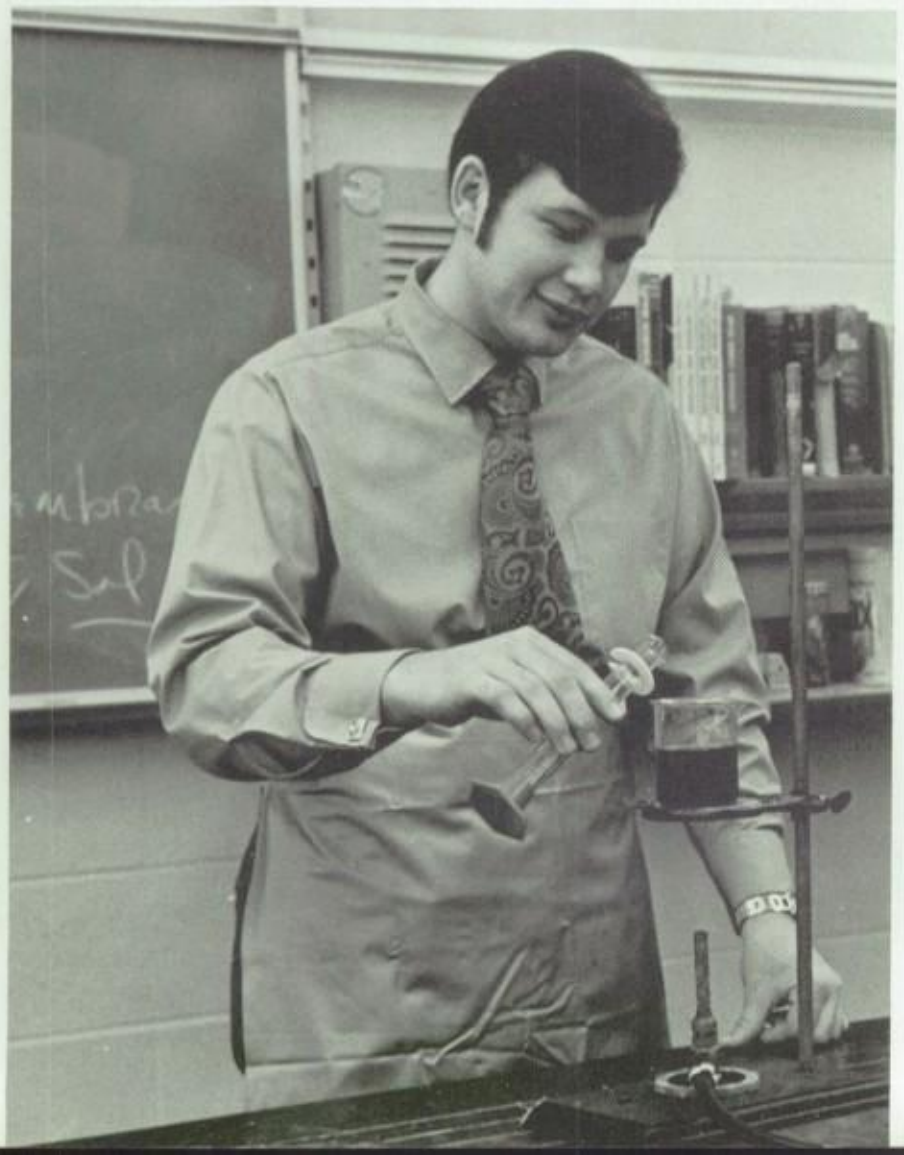
After ten years the annual staff succeeds in getting a shot at Mr. Schaudig.

With Mrs. Collins' help, Mr. Comn "tapers up" Mr. Creasy for the new semester.

Mrs. Record makes her debut for an "Excedrin" commercial after a hard day's work.

Scholarship and Leadership

As Mr. Combs adds ingredients, he is careful not to let the beaker get too hot.



As the Baron groped through the darkness of ignorance, trying to grasp a light of knowledge, he asked for a guide to hold the beacon before him in order to stay on the the right path. The administration and faculty assumed the role as the guide imparting unlimited knowledge, while still yet the administrator guided him to a competent career, lending confidence through the many pitfalls met along the way.

These sincere gifts of learning made the Baron's life at Amelia High School worth living.

Tim Linser eagerly contributes his time and energy to the senior glass drive.

Seniors Prepare for Future

The 1971 graduating class was in the last stages of their preparation for adulthood. For three years the seniors busied themselves by learning to accept new responsibilities, challenging and meeting challenges. Then the seniors faced the final challenge of graduation from high school as well as from a way of life. The many paths of the future loomed ahead of them, and each had to draw from his accumulated knowledge of earlier years in order to achieve success.

The senior year centered mostly around the senior trip and graduation. The paper drive, used to finance the trip to Washington, D. C., started in the summer. Divided into group they cajoled and pleaded with their fellow students and neighb to save newspapers. The Senior Candy sale and Glass Drive supplied additional funds.

Graduation tremors were first felt when the photographer arrived in the summer. Soon announcements were ordered and measurements taken for caps and gowns. The prom was attend ed, senior trip was over, and graduation arrived. The years at Amelia were finished, yet their influence continued.

Being senior class sponsors Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Lutz have to chart a course for the Senior Class trip.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Cheerie Hanifen, Treasurer; Mary Lou Sigsby, President; Janet Thompson, Secretary; Bev Kirschner, Vice-President.

Juniors Assume Leadership Roles

To the class of 1972, their junior year was an exciting and crucial year. The juniors had to assume many responsibilities new to them such as raising money, becoming officers of clubs, and choosing an academic or vocational career.

The Major responsibility of the junior class was raising money for the junior-senior prom. Juniors sold candy bars and had a car wash. They also thought of a new money-raising project, selling tickets to the fall play "Don't Drink the Water" in return for a share of the profits.

Other important jobs that the juniors held were the president of an organization and an advisory editor on the annual staff. Also, juniors were able to participate in varsity sports.

Juniors took the first steps in planning a future. The juniors taking academic courses applied to the universities of their choice. As a preparation for entering college, some juniors took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT). Juniors planning a career in business entered vocational education programs such as Business Education (BOE) or Television-Radio Repair.

Also in the juniors year, they became eligible for the National Honor Society because of his outstanding participation in extra-curricular activities and scholarly performance.

These were only some of the major events of the junior year, but those mentioned show the responsibilities that sets them on the road to assuming life as an adult.

Painting pep posters reflects Teresa Anderson, Linda Berry, Becky Huntington, Donna Lamons, and Shelly Schoff's blue pride.

To raise funds for his class, Clyde Henson urges fellow students to buy candy bars.

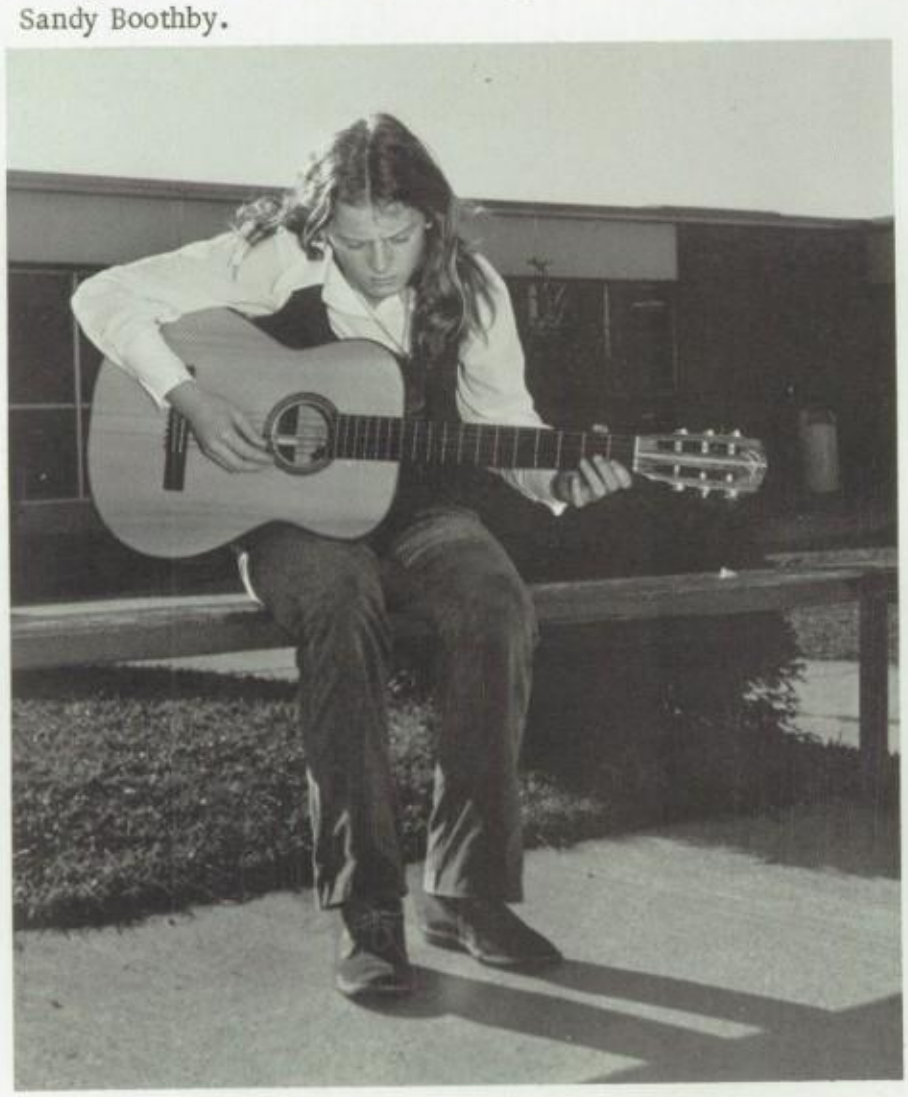
The guitar requires much time and great musical talent from Sandy Boothby.



Candy Gabriel sits thoughtfully amidst the bustle of study hall.

Lunch is a pleasant experience for sophomore girls.

Sophomores Attain Leadership

To the class of 1973 its sophomore year, dedicated to preparing itself for upperclassman status, was the stable link between the confusion of its freshman year and the responsibilities of its junior year. By assuming important roles in many school organizations, sophomores proved their willingness to work toward becoming more responsible upperclassmen.

The sophomores revived two dormant school organizations: The newspaper and the pep club. In recent years the newspaper had become an annual publication; sophomores gave it a new name and returned it to regular circulation. The pep club, a once active club that had vanished from Amelia High School, was reorganized by sophomores and had a sophomore president.

Through diligent labor the sophomores attained important positions in the music department and on the annual staff. In their sophomore year students were allowed to participate in many activities for the first time. For example, sophomore girls joined the drill team.

Although the sophomores had accomplished little as a class, assumed a leadership role in other activities.

Christy Boles leads the sophomore class to showing their school spirit.

Freshmen Search for Maturity

Numerous mixed emotions assaulted the freshmen as they approached the school building. Entering the halls and observing the chaos left many students in awe. Later the happiness of being there and the accompanying sense of importance replaced the confusion of the new environment.

The freshman class officers who were also members of student council included: Harvey Cox, Carol Hill, Bonny Slaten, and Barb Dugan. These candidates were elected by the freshmen to uphold the views of the class of '74. The officers voiced their thoughts and listened to others to decide how to make a more enjoyable and memorable year for the freshmen.

The steering committee was closely related to the student council. The organization was composed of several members who represented individual units of the freshman class. Members joined in the preparation for assemblies and made a point to interest students in the school events.

Freshmen participated in many performances given by the band and choirs such as: halftime shows at football and basketball games and the annual Honor Society tapping.

This year these events revealed freshman blue pride, responsibility, and maturity.

Editor Looks in Retrospect 1970-71

When the 1971 BARON was conceived, it was contended to be an insurmountable task. At that time I decided to devote this page to those people who made it possible, for one person can not do it all. This, then, became the purpose of this page.

Without the diligence of my section editors (Dave Burton, Sara Erhardt, Pam Hanselman, Sandra Rohlfing, Judy White, and Sandy Strosnider) this book would be one of blank pages. No one but they can realize what hundreds of hours of work, true devotion to a cause, and self-sacrifice meant. Most of them who remained on the staff went "beyond the call of duty" to make up for those who fell "by the way side." To those, I especially owe the success of this book because they quit.

But there remains one person to whom I owe more than I could ever repay. Mrs. Anna Luddy, the advisor to the BARON, gave her time, effort, and sleep to its production. Without her guidance, aid, and cooperation, the book would not have been published.

I wish to give special thanks to Mr. Albert Nutgrass, Mr. Herschel Comn, and faculty members, for their unparalleled efforts and interest in the BARON.

I, also, acknowledge the contributions made by the following:

- The West Clermont Local Board of Education.
- Mr. Curt Shaw, Mr. Edward Caudill, and Jim Batchler for pictures.
- Mr. Keith Williams and Mr. Kenneth Randall for copy.
- Diane King for art work.
- The people at Taylor Publishing Company, especially Mr. Terry Hertsinger, our yearbook counselor who was wonderfull to work with and contributed greatly to the 1971 BARON.
- Osborne Studios for pictures.
- The Swallen's Company and The Twin Fair Company.
- The advertisers for their monetary donations and interest in the BARON.
